

ENTIRE FORCE HUNTS FOR NATHAN SWARTZ

Hughes Takes Charge of Police Activity in Murder of Julia Connors.

FIFTY SPECIALS SEARCH

Relatives of Young Ex-Convict Would Give Him Up if They Found Him.

Inspector L. Hughes, chief of the Central Office, took charge yesterday of the hunt for the murderer of Julia Connors.

The failure of Capt. Price of the Bronx detective bureau to take a step forward after seven days of investigation and the fact that Price and his men let Nathan Swartz slip through their hands has not pleased Inspector Hughes, and it was said last night that some pretty warm messages had passed between Police Headquarters and the Bronx detective bureau.

Young Swartz, the ex-convict and hanger on at prizefighters' camps, who lived in an apartment at 3970 Third avenue, was separated only by a five-foot airshaft from the apartment at 3988, where the bathtub stained with the little girl's blood was found, has disappeared.

Last night 6,000 uniformed policemen, the night force, in addition to fifty plain clothes men specially detailed, were searching for him, and detectives had been sent also to Jersey City and Newark. In addition the police of every important city in the country have been supplied with a description of the stocky, dark faced youth.

Inspector Hughes' men expect that the inactivity of Price's squad will be rectified within forty-eight hours, because young Swartz had no money when he quarreled with his mother and left home last Sunday morning. He could have no source of supply, the police believe, except fourth rate prizefighters and other acquaintances of this character. In fact late last night the detectives learned that Swartz was seen on Friday night in the vicinity of 125th street and Third avenue.

His family insisted yesterday that they had no knowledge whatever of his whereabouts, that they were astonished that he hadn't appeared to answer questions the detectives want to ask and that they will give him up if he comes to any of them.

Admitting now that their investigation of the murder is confined for the time being on Nathan Swartz, alias Joe Nathan, the Bronx detectives had no explanation ready as to why they took no interest in Swartz's movements early in the week. Angry over the complaints that have arisen in the neighborhood of the Connors home that the police have bungled the whole business, Capt. Price declines to discuss the case except to say that twenty men lost valuable time because of the little girl's remarkable fabrications.

On Sunday, July 7, when Julia's body was found in the vacant lot just under the windows of the Swartz apartment the detectives professed to make a house to house inquiry asking every family as to who was missing. On that day and for the next few days the street talk had to do with Nathan Swartz, who had served eighteen months for an assault on a little girl and who was again gone from home under circumstances that aroused comment.

It was known that he had not been at home on the night of Saturday, July 6, and that he had disappeared the following morning after failing to get money from his family. But Price apparently disregarded these suggestions and his men spent most of their time picking up vagrants and detectives and listening to the incoherencies of these unfortunates. The search for Swartz began on Friday after the reporters had supplied the Bronx detectives with information. It is held at Police Headquarters that if there was any reason to arrest Swartz the attempt should have been made without the loss of five or six days of valuable time.

Young Swartz's family was found yesterday at 505 Cleveland avenue, East New York, where his mother, Mrs. Samuel Swartz, Nathan's mother, suddenly dying in the apartment at 3970 Third avenue, and his father, Nathan Swartz, who was a warehouseman at Tremont and Park avenues in the Bronx, the Swartzs fled the neighborhood to avoid notoriety.

Finally the mother called her son to the Crutcher home and began to pull on that family. The nuisance became so great that the Swartzs were requested to leave last night. They did so and left no word as to where they were going.

Mrs. Frances Alexander, a married woman, sister of the Swartz family yesterday at the Crutcher home. She said:

"All of us are praying that Nathan will be captured or that he will give himself up in a short time so that he can have a chance to clear himself. If I could find him I would turn him over to the detectives. Unless my brother can prove himself innocent in his family will have anything to do with him."

"If he is guilty of this crime he can expect no aid from us. If he is guilty I hope he will be found and punished. We are asking the police to find him. I have a little girl of my own and I can understand the feelings of parents."

She will not say that my brother had anything to do with the murder of Julia Connors, but I cannot understand why he does not come forward to clear himself. None of us are holding back information. We know where he is, but we know the detectives know where to find any of us at any hour."

Morris Friedland, a young law student, is the husband of a sister of Nathan Swartz, and that is known around several of the families of the family and that he has distressed them several times.

If he killed little Julia Connors," said Mrs. Friedland, "there is not a member of his family or a relative who would not gladly give him up. We realize that his disappearance from home on the day the little girl's body was found is suspicious when taken in connection with the crime for which he got into trouble. We will do all in our power to help the police."

Members of the Swartz family deny Nathan was home on the Sunday after the crime. Mrs. Swartz said that it was Saturday he was seen last.

any further evidence that the murder was committed on the apartment where the bloodstained bathtub is. They thought it far more likely that the little girl was stabbed somewhere else in the neighborhood, and that the murderer either carried her body there from the purpose of disposing of it, or threw it in the vacant lot and then went to the flat for the purpose of leaving such evidence of his crime as would throw the detectives off the track.

Justice of the Peace Daniel Webster Quinn of Valhalla notified Police Headquarters last night that he was holding for the inspection of the detectives here a young man who was arrested in Hawthorne yesterday for alarming women and whose pocketbook contained many pictures of young girls, a quantity of women's hair and several letters that the man had received from Brooklyn girls.

Yesterday afternoon the young man, who is about 25 years old, shabbily dressed and noticeable because of the extraordinary development of the upper part of his head, stopped at the house of Mrs. Solie Reynolds in Hawthorne and asked for something to eat. Mrs. Reynolds, who was talking at the time with a neighbor woman who had brought her little boy and girl to call, gave the tramp a lunch. She noticed that he promptly threw the food to a dog that was playing about the yard.

Mrs. Reynolds was frightened and her alarm increased when the tramp pointed to the children and asked if one of the pair was a girl. The women tried to get into the house and lock the door, but the man put his foot against it and blocked the way. Finally Mrs. Reynolds slipped past him, ran out of the back of the house and called to a man who was working near by. The man collared the tramp and took him before Judge Quinn.

The prisoner said his name was Frank Julie and that he had twenty aliases. Five Cent Julie among them. Judge Quinn examined the hair, photographs of little girls and letters that were found in Julie's pocketbook and then, with the Bronx murder case in mind, sent word to the police here.

New London, Conn., July 13.—The body of a young man found on the tracks of the New Haven road near the Groton station yesterday afternoon was thought by the local police to-night to answer the description of Nathan Swartz, whom the New York police are seeking in connection with the death of Julia Connors. The New York headquarters was informed of the finding.

STEINBERG BACK IN BELLEVUE.

German Manufacturer's Son Hard to Keep Track Of.

Eugene Steinberg, 28 years old, who is a son of a German manufacturer in Germany and has been at the Prince George Hotel since February, was taken to Bellevue Hospital yesterday for observation.

Steinberg had not been long in this country when he reported at Bellevue one morning that he was not feeling right. He was kept there for some time and was released on a writ issued out before Justice Goff ordering Dr. Gregory of Bellevue to place him under the surveillance of Bernard von Holland of 158 West 141st street, manager for M. W. Card & Co. of 487 Broadway. Steinberg's father had heard of his son's confinement and had asked the German Consul in this city to have him released.

Von Holland has kept a watch on Steinberg, but a week ago Steinberg left the city suddenly. Two days ago Von Holland received a letter from him asking for money. Von Holland told him to come to New York for it. Yesterday afternoon he met Steinberg, whom the police then sent to Bellevue.

Dr. Gregory of Bellevue said last night that Steinberg appeared to be mentally depressed.

HANGED IN SLING HE MADE.

Schoolboy Throttled by Twisting Rope While Playing in Cellar.

Herbert Petrie, the thirteen-year-old son of Robert Petrie, a marine engineer, yesterday afternoon rigged up a rope sling from a rafter in the cellar of his home at 270 Hoyt street, Brooklyn. His sister, Georgiana, 9 years old, wanted the first ride, but he overruled her.

Herbert wound himself up in the loop and was twisted around as the line twisted. He kept this up until the little girl became angry and started upstairs, saying that she would get the scissors and cut the old rope to pieces. When she returned Herbert was lying face down in the loop, strangled to death. He had slipped from his seat and the winding rope had throttled him. A physician was hastily called but could do nothing.

As Georgiana reentered the cellar without the scissors, having been dissuaded from that purpose by her mother, Mrs. Petrie called her to the head of the stairs. "Herbert, why don't you let Georgiana ride?" she asked.

"He's playing dead and trying to scare me," the little girl cried back. Mrs. Petrie hurried down. The lower part of Herbert's body was on the floor. The rope had choked him into unconsciousness and he had been unable to help himself.

Herbert was a member of the graduating class of Public School 73, and of the Bible class of the South Congregational Church. There are seven brothers and sisters in the family.

SCHOONER SINKS IN BAY.

Three Master Hits Shoal and Goes Down Off the Homer Beacon.

A three masted schooner, partly identified since as the Acrlight of Charlotte, P. E. I., ran onto a shoal about a mile from the Homer beacon in a fog yesterday morning and sank within a few minutes. Her six men were taken off by an outgoing tug, which proceeded on her way without stopping to make a search for the wreck.

The schooner was just barely seen from Sandy Hook as she went on the shoal with all sails set. Shortly after she struck the shoal she was seen by the tug and the men aboard took to a small boat. The tug was near by at the time and had no trouble picking them up.

WANTS COL. HENDRIE GUARDED.

Wife of Connecticut Guardsman Says He Is Drunkard.

Stamford, Conn., July 13.—Following the filing of papers in a suit for divorce from her husband, Col. Charles W. Hendrie, Mrs. Rebecca Hendrie has applied in the Stamford Probate Court for his commitment to an asylum for imbeciles, alleging he is incompetent to manage his own affairs. She has also applied for the appointment of a conservator for his estate. She alleges that Col. Hendrie is a drunkard and that his estate is worth $125,000.

Col. Hendrie last night that he would fight the petition. He commanded the Fourth Connecticut Infantry regiment for a number of years. He was sheriff here six years and was also Tax collector.

THEIR WEDDING SEPT. 11.

Miss Allen Osborn and Vanderbilt Webb Set the Date.

One of the fall wedding will be that of Miss Allen Osborn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Church Osborn of this city and Garrison N. Y., to Vanderbilt Webb, youngest son of Dr. and Mrs. W. Seward Webb of New York. The wedding will take place September 11 at Mr. and Mrs. Osborn's country place, Forest Farm, in Garrison, N. Y. The ceremony will be performed by the late William E. Dodge. She was introduced to society two years ago. Mr. Webb is a grandson of the late William B. Vanderbilt. He was graduated from Yale this year.

Have These Men Lived in Vain?

HERE are the world's great masters of music—men whose lives were dedicated to making your life richer. The music which they created comprises a golden treasury of purest enjoyment. Think of what your books have meant to you—then realize that these men's works relate narratives even more fascinating. Think of the plays that have given you the most enjoyment—then remember that the operas, cantatas and oratorios written by these immortal geniuses offer you even keener pleasure.

Are you content to forego all that music affords? Don't you care to know and enjoy Handel's "Largo," or Chopin's "Nocturnes"? Was Schumann's "Traumerlei," Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," Wagner's "Lohengrin," Haydn's "Creation" written in vain, as far as you are concerned?

Surely you will not permit this? You will not continue to remain blind to the world's progress and to the wonderful invention which places all music at your disposal, which enables you to share the musician's joy of playing, and makes you as intimately familiar with Beethoven and Wagner as you are with Thackeray, Dickens, Hugo or Scott.

The Pianola Piano

Offers You Entree to the World of Music

Is any prejudice keeping you from the great joy and pleasure music is capable of giving you through the Pianola Piano?

Think! If these great men, pictured above, should come to you and tell you that they approved absolutely of the Pianola Piano, and assured you that this instrument would enable you to play all their works as they should be played, would you not believe them? Would you not immediately secure a Pianola Piano?

This is just what the great musicians of the present day,—Strauss, Moszkowski, Grieg, Puccini, Debussy, Paderewski, Chaminade, and scores of others, tell you. There is no possible reason for thinking that Mendelssohn, Beethoven, or Wagner would say otherwise.

Now look this matter fairly in the face. Do you want music—the right kind of music—in your home?

Do you want to be given the ability to play the piano yourself?

Then come to Aeolian Hall and see the Pianola Piano.

Don't go to some other store, and think you are seeing the Pianola Piano. You are not, for the real Pianola Piano is to be seen only at Aeolian Hall.

Go to other stores by all means if you want to, but remember that every instrument you will see is but an imitation of the Pianola Piano, with the most important features (which are patented) left out.

This statement does not reflect merely a manufacturer's enthusiasm. It is a simple statement of fact, easily verified.

You can own a Pianola Piano—

You can buy a beautiful model—the Stroud Pianola Piano—for $550, on very easy monthly installments.

And you can trade in an old piano and get a liberal allowance for it.

Other Pianola Pianos are the Steinway, Weber, Steck, Wheelock and Stuyvesant. These are the only instruments legally entitled to be called Pianola Pianos.

HANFORD GAVE ONE MAN SEVEN RECEIVERSHIPS

Congressional Committee Inquires Into Charges of Favoritism.

EXCESSIVE FEES PAID

One Received $140,000 for Packing Company Case—Another Got $40,000.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 13.—The Hanford case was switched again to-day from the Finch charges and intoxication allegations to an inquiry into receivership matters in Hanford's court.

Two receivers whose appointments are alleged to have shown favoritism on the part Judge Hanford and abuse of judicial discretion were called by the congressional investigating committee. They were James A. Kerr of the legal firm of Kerr & McCord, receivers for the Pacific Packing and Navigation Company and the Pacific American Fisheries Company, and Sutcliffe Baxter, who is at present one of the receivers of the Western Steel Corporation and already has received $40,000 in fees out of that case.

In answer to Representative McCoy, Baxter testified that he had no profession, that he is not a lawyer and that he has had seven receiverships from Judge Hanford in the last four or five years. Asked what his occupation now is, Baxter said that he was doing some real estate and mining business, and that he is receiver for the Western Steel Corporation. Baxter could not give exact dates in connection with receiverships which he held and was excused to prepare the data for the committee next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Kerr was appointed receiver for the packing companies by Judge Hanford in March, 1903. In that connection Hanford is charged with allowing Kerr, as receiver, and the firm of Kerr & McCord, as attorneys for the receiver, the excessive fee of $140,000.

Kerr claimed with Representative McCoy when the latter insisted upon finding out what steps Kerr had taken to ascertain if capital stock in the companies had been paid up. The Pacific American Company had been capitalized for $5,000,000. The Packing and Navigation Company was capitalized for $25,000,000 two years later in 1905, and practically absorbed the first company.

Kerr said he did not get the treasury book from its custodian in New Jersey, and so never proceeded to make stock subscribers pay up. Kerr was attorney for two companies up to the time of their failure. Kerr testified that he received but $40,000 for three years—continuous

McCOMBS TO BE CHAIRMAN.

Democratic National Committee Will Organize To-morrow.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 13.—Democrats have begun to arrive for the meeting of the new National Committee in the Congress Hotel on Monday. Robert S. Hudspeth, member for New Jersey, will bring with him the suggestions of Woodrow Wilson regarding the officers to be chosen for the committee.

That William F. McCombs of New York will be the new chairman of the committee seems to be taken for granted. He will arrive from New York to-morrow morning, accompanied by National Committee men Daniels, Ewing and McGraw and Thomas Pence of Gov. Wilson's campaign staff.

Gray Woodson, who has been secretary of the committee for many years, was not reelected a member by the Kentucky Democrats, and while membership is not a qualification for the secretaryship, Mr. Woodson is not a candidate for the place.

Some members think his experience is valuable and they want him to continue in office. Joseph Davies of Wisconsin is talked for treasurer.

Edwin Sefton of New York, who was assistant secretary in the Parker campaign, is here and it is understood he would like to regain his old position.

The present assistant secretary, John B. Burton, was an original Wilson man, but it is not known whether he is a candidate for reelection.

Chicago probably will be chosen as the main headquarters for the campaign, with branches in New York and on the Pacific coast. It is believed the headquarters will be in the Congress Hotel, where they were in 1904.

Charles Boeschenstein, new Democratic National Committeeman from Illinois, who succeeded Roger C. Sullivan, and Cato Sells, a new member from Texas, were the first of the committeemen to arrive. Mr. Boeschenstein, who for years has been at the head of the Democratic State committee, said Chicago is "the place" for the national headquarters.

The chairman will be the man Gov. Wilson wants and the understanding is he would like to have his campaign manager, Mr. McCombs, made chairman. This will be satisfactory to the members of the committee, who look upon the nominee as the new leader of the party.

BARNES TO HEAD ADVISERS.

State Chairman Will Aid Taft's Campaign Manager.

Charles D. Hilles, the new chairman of the Republican National Committee, will be in this city on Tuesday to open the new quarters in the Times Building.

Although Mr. Hilles will give some of his time to the headquarters in Chicago and will take a trip to the Pacific Coast to supervise the work of the campaign there, it is understood that the general work of the campaign will be directed from this city and that Mr. Hilles will do most of his work at the Eastern headquarters here.

A meeting of the campaign sub-committee of the National committee will be held in this city on Friday. At this meeting it is understood that an advisory body will be named to aid Mr. Hilles, and that William Barnes, Jr., the chairman of the New York State committee, will be named as its chairman.

THRASH OLYMPIC'S MUSICIANS.

Passengers Make Them Surrender Collection to Seamen's Fund.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN. PARIS, July 13.—There was a shindy aboard the White Star liner Olympic last Thursday night, the details of which just have been learned.

After $108 had been collected at the usual ship's concert by Miss Hernandez, a Cuban, another girl from that island handed the money to the ship's orchestra. Then Capt. Debat of Johannesburg and a fellow organizer of the concert suggested that the money should be handed over to the Seamen's Fund.

The musicians refused to give up, Capt. Hadcock of the Olympic declined to interfere, whereupon Capt. Debat and two passengers are said to have thrashed several of the musicians and made them surrender the money.

The passengers were indignant over the action of the musicians.
